Applicant's election without traverse of group I, specie B, claims 96-106 in Paper No. 17 is acknowledged.

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The Information disclosure Statements filed on 3/19/03 has been considered.
2. Claims 101 and 106 are objected to because of the following informalities:
"oneanother" in line 2 should be changed to --one another--. Appropriate correction is required.

Claims Rejection Under 35 USC - 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 96-100 and 102-104 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Nishioka (5,642,177).

Nishioka discloses detachable sunglasses with magnet which comprises a first lens frame for holding a first lens, a second lens frame for holding a second lens, a first attachment housing extending from a first frame, a second attachment housing extending from a second frame, and a pair of temples hingedly connected to respective ones of the attachment housings and extending rearwardly from the frames to secure the eyewear on a wearer thereof, each of the attachment housings having a rearwardly directed surface with a bore formed therein, a first magnetic member (7) embedded within the bore of the first attachment housing and a second magnetic member (7) embedded within the bore of the second attachment housing, the magnetic members being adapted to secure auxiliary lenses in superimposed relation to the first and second lenses.

Claims Rejection Under 35 USC - 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 101 and 106 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nishioka (5,642,177) in view of Nerney (1,613,765).

Nishioka discloses detachable sunglasses with magnet which comprises a first lens frame for holding a first lens, a second lens frame for holding a second lens, a first attachment housing extending from a first frame, a second attachment housing extending from a second frame, and a pair of temples hingedly connected to respective ones of the attachment housings and extending rearwardly from the frames to secure the eyewear on a wearer thereof, each of the attachment housings having a rearwardly directed surface with a bore formed therein, a first magnetic member (7) embedded within the bore of the first attachment housing and a second magnetic member (7) embedded within the bore of the second attachment housing, the magnetic members being adapted to secure auxiliary lenses in superimposed relation to the first and second lenses.

Nishioka does not disclose an attachment housing having an upper section and a lower section detachably secured to one another.

Nerney, however, discloses an attachment housing having an upper section and a lower section detachably secured to one another.

Because Nishioka and Nerney are both from the same field of endeavor, the purpose of easy changing lenses as disclosed by Nerney would have been recognized as an art pertinent art of Nishioka.

It would have been obvious, therefore, at the time the invention was made to a person having skill in the art to construct the eyeglasses frame, such as the one disclosed by Nishioka, with an attachment housing having an upper section and a lower section detachably secured to one another, such as disclosed by Nerney for the purpose of easy changing lenses.

Claims Rejection Under 35 USC - 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 105 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nishioka (5,642,177) in view of Chao (5,568,207).

Nishioka discloses detachable sunglasses with magnet which comprises a first lens frame for holding a first lens, a second lens frame for holding a second lens, a first attachment housing extending from a first frame, a second attachment housing extending from a second frame, and a pair of temples hingedly connected to respective ones of the attachment housings and extending rearwardly from the frames to secure the eyewear on a wearer thereof, each of the attachment housings having a rearwardly directed surface with a bore formed therein, a first magnetic member (7) embedded within the bore of the first attachment housing and a second magnetic member (7) embedded within the bore of the second attachment housing, the magnetic members being adapted to secure auxiliary lenses in superimposed relation to the first and second lenses.

Nishioka does not disclose an arm of the auxiliary engagable with the rearwardly directed surface of the attachment housing.

Chao, however, discloses an arm of the auxiliary engagable with the rearwardly directed surface of the attachment housing.

Because Nishioka and Chao are both from the same field of endeavor, the purpose of stably attached as disclosed by Chao would have been recognized as an art pertinent art of Nishioka.

Art Unit: 2873

It would have been obvious, therefore, at the time the invention was made to a person having skill in the art to construct the eyeglasses frame, such as the one disclosed by Nishioka, with an arms of the auxiliary engagable with the rearwardly directed surface of the attachment housing, such as disclosed by Chao for the purpose of stably attached.
